These Soden family trees have been either formed by me from correspondence received from the Soden person concerned or have been submitted to me using the information they have accumulated over the decades.

It is hoped that with input from others and the DNA information they made be substantiated or completed in the near future. These seem certainly to have one common thread and that is , they can at some stage in their development be traced to the area of Oxfordshire and Warwickshire in the United Kingdom.